Charter of the Nations rejecting Sharia

Preamble:

We, free organizations and free citizens, who assume all responsibility for our actions; in the name of and for the preservation of the values of freedom, separation of church and state and respect for others, present in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, a cornerstone of our democracies; hereby solemnly denounce the presence and introduction of Sharia law in our territories.

The signatories of the charter refute any accusation of sexism, racism or xenophobia. To condemn Sharia is a political and social action, which in no way concerns the character of individuals or their person. Sharia, which, by classifying and ranking human beings depending on their religious beliefs or their gender, and by declaring part of humanity as impure and inferior, amounts to an unacceptable system of religious racism and xenophobia.

Sharia, which intends to govern the acts of individuals under the threat of spiritual or physical punishment on behalf of a religious belief, is a set of rules which fundamentally violates the constitutional freedoms and human dignity of our citizens, by trying to persuade them to abjure their inalienable rights in favor of a degrading servitude.

We, the undersigned, in light of the fundamental incompatibility between Democracy and Sharia law, hereby declare it to be undesirable in our respective countries and call upon all citizens and organizations to support this proclamation and to work together in defense of our fundamental liberties and human dignity.

We commit ourselves to preserve and defend our fellow citizens and our societies from Sharia and to work for its definitive banishment by all means in our possession, within the limits of the law and democratic principles.

We commit ourselves:

+ To promote in our respective countries the passage of laws forbidding the teaching of the rules of sharia as well as the promotion or propagation, public or private, of their individual or collective application as norms of conduct.

+ To promote in our respective countries effective educational, legislative and repressive measures designed to eliminate social practices linked to the application of the rules of sharia.

(1): Decision of February 13, 2003 rendered by the European Court of Rights of Man* of Strasbourg concerning sharia :

"The Court has ruled that the latter was incompatible with the principal fundamentals of democracy as established by the Convention.

*The Grand Chamber of the European Court of the Rights of Man is the supreme instance in decisions concerning human rights; the signatories of the Convention are bound by its decisions.

The European Convention of the Rights of Man, ratified by the European states is law in all the countries of the European Union.
